Bart:

I am encouraged by the statements made by Clean Harbors management in the following story:

“The study is being made by Clean Harbors Inc., a Massachusetts company that bought the facility in 2002, and Baton Rouge Disposal, said Phillip Retallick, Clean Harbors’ senior vice president of compliance and regulatory affairs.

He said the next step will be a study about possible ways to clean up the area.

EPA ordered the feasibility study in 2009, and with another study to come, any cleanup is “still a few years out,” he said.”

Our Assistant Secretary, Chance McNeely, was interviewed by Channel 33 today and will be on the 6 p.m. news tonight in Baton Rouge.
